A question was posed about drug addiction and how we gauge the percent of the population who uses or are addicted to drugs. Jim Glover advised of how fire departments and EMS are supposed to report and respond to overdose calls, and advised of the accidental and intentional overdoses, but outlined that the follow-up on these cases are in the hands of other agencies. Dr. Scarpitti had also asked about how other counties are handling the report of overdoses and drug use, which is subsequently subject to what kind of drugs. Joe explained that there is data available through the state and federal agencies, but outlined the limitations of locally available data and the difficulty in trying to correlate overdose reduction and increased entry into treatment with needle exchange programs by comparing data from other counties. There was also a discussion about how the state opioid settlement money may be disbursed and used among local townships, villages, and cities.
